"BRICS is a very important platform. The summit that is taking place now is the most important summit in geopolitics. I think it could become a turning point in history," he emphasized.

"It is quite possible that he will be remembered for many decades and that he will reshape the entire world order," the analyst noted.

The conference was organized by the UAE-based information and analytical center Trends Research and Advisory. Research centers from Russia, Brazil, Egypt, India, Iran, China, Ethiopia and South Africa also took part.

The 16th BRICS Summit, which is the key event of the Russian Federation's chairmanship of the association, is taking place in Kazan from October 22 to 24. The BRICS association was created in 2006 by Brazil, Russia, India and China, and South Africa joined in 2011. On January 1, 2024, Egypt, Iran, the UAE, Saudi Arabia and Ethiopia became full members of the group. The summit in Kazan was the first to be attended by new members of the association.
